Please see the wikipedia article for a description of what an emulator is: "Why are you sharing this emulator?" I am sharing this because I am supporting a company that is responsible for this emulator. they don't get enough recognition for all the hard work they do. "Do you provide updates for this emulator?" I do not provide updates for this emulator, if you want updates, you can buy the program and get updates as they become available. "What is your support policy?" I do not offer support, but if you buy the program and get stuck, there are people on the emusic community who will provide help. "Where can I find this emulator?" If you search the emusic community, you will find someone selling this emulator, if you search google you will find many sellers. "How do I get this emulator?" Go to the emusic community, pick a seller and purchase this emulator. Note: This emulator is not available in the Google Play Store or the Amazon App Store "This emulator is not free." That is a fact, I am sorry. It is a limitation of the marketplace. "How do I install this emulator?" Double click the installer, and the installer will run on your computer. "I don't want to purchase the program, can you give it to me for free?" No, I am not allowed to do that. It is very easy to purchase the program, I won't ask you to steal. "Can you give me the serial number?" Sorry, I can not do that. "Can I ask a question about the program?" Yes, we do support that. Send your questions to the following email address: magicsoft@emusic.com We may have already answered your question, it is difficult to monitor all the questions. If you have any problems 82157476af
